and if the benefits of centralised dispensing are to be fully delivered, then all community pharmacies must be able to access them.

It is likely these entities assume, and many times correctly so, that these individuals have many debts they are not paying on.