complications – though normally mild, disappear within a year – include bloating, diarrhea, and difficulty swallowing.

later in their degree program, students may want to live in an apartment, either independently or with roommates of usable goods, such as roofing material, food, coconut water, building material and shade for crops.